THE GUARDIAN :

THE 7TH WISHBONE LOTTERY

Golden Rescue's 7th Annual Wishbone Lottery was our biggest success ever. We sold 4,835 tickets leaving a mere 165 tickets unsold. This is over 400 tickets more than we have ever sold since the lottery's inception. This record-breaking year netted Golden Rescue over $130,000 after all prizes and expenses. We want to thank everyone who bought tickets and a heartfelt HUGE thank you goes to our dedicated ticket sellers. What an absolute success because of YOU!!!

Thank You!!!!

The Front Cover

Levi #3232 ~ Levi is a true character who believes that sleeping upside down is way better than right side up. Since arriving in Canada, he has gained 20 lbs. of pure muscle and grown gorgeous fur. He has mastered life off-leash and adventures are his absolute favourite ~ anywhere with water, snow or especially mud. And this Egyptian loves the snow but after his outings, couch cuddles are his second favourite thing. His family says "We just celebrated Levi's one-year Gotcha Day and what a year it's been! It feels crazy and strange that it has already been a year since that emotional airport pickup day yet it truly feels like he's been with us forever. He was certainly meant to be in our family." This photogenic boy is also on the cover of the 2021 calendar.

Mission Statement

Golden Rescue gives second chances to Goldens in need.

Our mission is simple and straightforward because that's who we are and that's what we do. Our volunteer-run organization, led by a volunteer, working board of directors, is dedicated to ensuring that each and every rescued Golden receives exceptional care, regardless of the extent of their needs. We provide veterinary care, rehabilitation, behaviour training, and numerous other services to help our Goldens prepare for their second chance with a loving forever family. We also help educate people about the virtues of rescue as rescue is our favourite breed.

At the root of everything we do are our core values ~ integrity, kindness, compassion ~ all delivered without judgment. These are our guiding principles that drive our purpose and sustain our ability to continually wrap our arms around Goldens who so desperately need our help.

Golden Rescue™ is a registered trademark of the Canadian Golden Retriever Adoption Service Inc.

If you have any comments or suggestions for the Guardian, please email guardian@goldenrescue.ca.

Please note that due to publishing timelines, there may be a waiting period before the acknowledgement of your contribution. We appreciate your patience and will do our utmost to be as prompt as possible. Articles/photos in The Guardian may be reproduced with the express permission of The Guardian team.

The Guardian is the result of many people who have generously donated their time, expertise, design, and resources to its production. A great big THANK YOU goes to Betty James for the design and to Lyndsay Caslick and Michael Gibb for doing the mail-out.

We would like to thank all of our contributing writers and photographers... too many to list. Betty, who loves her furkids, has given up many weekends and evenings to design and assemble this newsletter so that we Golden lovers can read all about the golden world we live in.

A Tail of Two Cities

An interview with Anastassia & Chris ~ adopters of Ruby #3333

"It was the best of times. It was the worst of times." These famous Dickens' words certainly apply to all our lives at the moment. During this international pandemic crisis, it is hard to find good news anywhere but Ruby's story is a wonderful microcosm of Golden Rescue's Mission of Love that would warm the heart of the most hardened of us all. Read what these wonderful adopters said about Ruby's journey from Cairo to Toronto. A true 'tail' of two cities...

Why did you decide to adopt an International Golden? We decided to adopt an international Golden because we wanted the opportunity to completely transform a Golden's life for the better. We knew we could make them feel safe and comfortable and live a fun, exciting, and meaningful life.

We also have been volunteering with Golden Rescue for the past 3.5 years and love the work that they do. We always want to help any way we can and giving a Golden a great life is one of our ways of giving back.

How well has Ruby adapted to current pets in your home? Our senior Golden, Sundae, is nearly 12 years old and we were quite nervous about her reaction to a new (much younger) Golden in our home.

But Ruby was so respectful of Sundae from the minute they met.

It is also clear that she loves Sundae very much. She follows her around and does everything that Sundae does.

Sundae also seems more youthful since Ruby's arrival. She is much more playful and active ~ which is so amazing for us to see!

What sort of funny quirks does Ruby have? She sleeps on her back and snores really loud.

How TINY she is! She is basically full grown but looks like a Golden puppy!

Has your Ruby attached herself to someone in particular? It is quite evident that Ruby finds a lot of comfort in having Sundae nearby at all times.

Can you describe the transformation Ruby has gone through from the time you picked her up to now? Despite Ruby's health conditions and general exhaustion when she arrived, she was always a happy and loving puppy.

Since she arrived, she has gained nearly 10lbs, her energy has improved tremendously, she has learned many new commands, and has gained a lot of confidence. She also gained quite a bit of self-control when it comes to food, as she now understands that she will always be fed.

In the last couple of weeks, she has started growing her Golden featherings and her tail is becoming bushier.

What do you love the most about Ruby? Ruby adapted to us and our life so quickly.

She is so easy going and up for anything.

She is so good with our Sundae and brought youthfulness and playfulness back into her life!

She's had many fun adventures with us, which she thoroughly enjoys:

- · Boat to the Toronto Island
- Cottage weekends
- Sunrise canoe ride
- Camping
- Overnight backpacking in Algonquin Park
- Countless hikes and road trips
- BBQ with friends
- · A lot of exploring here in Toronto

Ruby is also exceptionally smart. She learned all the basic commands (and a few fun tricks too) at an incredible speed! She loves to learn and will do anything to please us (and to get a treat:)

The most amazing part is that it's clear how grateful she is. She shows us her gratitude and appreciation for everything she has now all the time.

If Ruby could talk, what do you think she would say about life in Canada? I think Ruby would be very grateful for her new humans and Golden sister as well as her comfy bed, all of her new toys, her tasty food and treats, and fun adventures.

I think she would also send a HUGE thank you to Golden Rescue and the shelter in Cairo for saving her and her best friend, Bentley, and would encourage all of us to make sure Golden Rescue can bring more Goldens like her to Canada:)

Can you describe what rescue means to you and your family? People frequently say to us that Ruby is so lucky for her change of fate, but we feel that we are the lucky ones!

We have fostered seven rescues over the past year (some of which were very challenging) and we feel that we were rewarded with a perfect angel! We could never imagine adopting a rescue that would be such a perfect fit for our family (and right from the start!)

We are also very appreciative of Golden Rescue and all of the volunteers who made it possible for us to welcome Ruby into our home. We know how much time and energy goes into making the events, fundraisers, and rescue missions happen...and we can't thank you enough for your dedication and passion for helping Goldens in need.

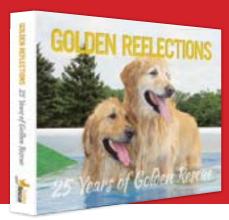

Exciting New Times for our NEW & IMPROVED GR Store

We are in the process of moving our online store in-house. This will simplify the buying process, streamline and speed up deliveries, and give us Golden buyers more selection. We are very excited about this change but we ask you to bear with us until we make the necessary changes. Our online store on our website will be shut down temporarily. We are sure it will be worth the wait.

In the meantime, if you would like to buy any of the following items for yourself or for the holiday season, please email grstore@goldenrescue.ca and our special elves will be happy to help you shop. Here's what we have available right now...

- Golden Reflections ~ our spectacular coffee table book
- 2021 calendars
- Masks (3 colours ~ beige, gray, blue)
- Mugs (with hilarious cartoons)
- Xmas cards (with 'golden' holiday messages)
- Bandanas for our Goldens (various colours)
- Kids t-shirts with 'Rescue is my favourite breed' (various sizes)
- Baseball caps ~ various colours + bright yellow 30th anniversary caps
- Bone magnets
- Dog bowls (collapsible/silicone)
- Poop bag holders
- Blank note cards (beautiful quality)
- Water bottles
- Licence plate frames

Annual Subaru Car Wash/BBQ Cancelled BUT...

Bay Subaru in Belleville sponsored a great car wash/BBQ fundraiser for Golden Rescue last summer and this was to be an annual event. Troy, the manager of Bay Subaru, supplied all the food and labour for the event and even the three car washing lads donated their earnings back to us. The event raised over $1,100.

The fundraiser this year was cancelled due to COVID; however, Troy presented a cheque for $1,000 in lieu of the event to Joe and Cynthia Howe and their beautiful Golden, Jenny #2667. Thank you, Troy and Bay Subaru...you're the best!

GOLDEN ANGELS

In each and every issue, we'd like to recognize some outstanding volunteers. Here, you will meet golden angels with golden hearts.

Shadow #1342

Lynn with Chief #3345 & Chase #2469

Brittany & Steve with Austyn & Chloe

Lynn Allan

Lynn has loved Goldens all her life. After losing her first rescued Golden, Crew #1616 in 1999, Lynn wasn't ready to adopt but wanted to help Golden Rescue in his memory, so she signed up to volunteer wherever needed. She joined the Facebook team and also helped with website updates, home visits, and transports. She also helped with fundraising initiatives and organized events such as Paint Nite. She is a key member of the placement team by posting all the adoption alerts and by sending out weekly adoption eblasts. She has recently taken on the responsibility of creating and scheduling the majority of our eblasts. Lynn adopted her second rescue Chase #2469 in 2015 and has just recently adopted Chief #3345 ~ one of the Cairo 24-karat Goldens. Lynn's Chase and Chief are also featured in this issue so you can read more about them. We are so fortunate that Lynn's love of Goldens lead her to us. Thank you, Lynn, for your passion and compassion for our Goldens!

Dr. Brittany Dunlop

Doctor Brittany is a foster superstar. After being introduced to Golden Rescue three short years ago, she has already fostered five Goldens, including our infamous Flyer #3293. Brittany grew up with Goldens as her mother was a responsible Golden breeder, so she always had four or five Goldens living in her home. She loves all animals and her chiropractic vet practice specializes in horses and dogs, although she admits she is biased towards Goldens ~ lucky us! Brittany and her husband live at home with a virtual menagerie of two dogs (one, a Golden, of course) and three cats and they are expecting their first child in April ~ congrats! Apart from her medical expertise, Brittany is a seasoned obedience trainer, so any Golden lucky enough to be fostered with her can be ensured of fantastic medical care as well as behaviour training, if necessary. Thank you, Brittany ~ we are so very fortunate to have you at our side.

Golden Adopters

We have hundreds of new Golden adopters every year. Last year, in fact, we had 316 families who gave our Goldens their much needed second chance. These special angels take a leap of faith every time they adopt one of our Goldens in need. As much as we try our best to understand each of our Goldens, we never know for sure what their story was, so our adopters need to prepare for any eventuality, particularly with our international Goldens whose histories are scant, to say the least. Most of the time, our rescue stories have a happy ending but occasionally our adopters face challenges no one expected. But that is life in the world of rescue. That's why we so appreciate our adopters who step up. You are now all over Canada ~ from B.C. to the Maritimes and it does our hearts proud to know you are out there as Golden Rescue ambassadors. Thank you for welcoming these Goldens into your hearts and home!

Thank You To All Our Golden Angels!

MEET & GREET

Nala #3202

Our dear, sweet Nala is living her best, much-loved life with two acres to run around on, a lake to swim in, and a family that adores her. Along with her 11-year-old Golden brother Ezra, she loves to go on the boat and all we have to do is get her life jacket and she runs to put it on and then runs straight to the boat ~ so cute to watch. She has a bit of trouble with her joints, which my husband, an orthopedic surgeon, watches like a hawk to ensure we maintain her weight and foreleg strength. She recently became a movie star on CBC Ottawa for their 'Friday Smile' where they showed this picture of Nala on the boat. What a superstar. What a snuggle puss. What a love.

MEET & GREET

Sam #2968

Our lovely, quiet boy came from the streets of Istanbul. Even though the Bosporus runs right through the middle of Istanbul, Sam must never have been exposed to water because he is not a fan of water. It is unfortunate because we have a lovely cottage on Georgian Bay and Sam just won't go in...no way, no how! The good news is that he loves the boat. Regardless of not liking to swim, Sam has fit into our lives beautifully.

Separation Anxiety

Separation anxiety in dogs is a common issue that many dogs deal with and one that can lead to a number of unpleasant behavioural traits including barking, pacing, whining, destructive behaviour when left alone, housebreaking problems, and a dog who shadows their owner everywhere. Some or all of these traits combined are signs of separation anxiety in dogs.

Dogs that exhibit these traits typically have either been severely neglected or conversely have been with someone 24/7 almost exclusively. You see a lot of separation anxiety in rescue dogs as a result of the frequent change in environments they are subjected to. Socializing the dog to a crate or dog bed is a highly beneficial first step in eliminating separation anxiety and gives the dog a calm and safe spot in the home that is just for them. Using the crate is also an important training tool because it allows you to practice having the dog not follow you and remain calm and relaxed while you leave the room.

In cases of neglected dogs, spend more time on bonding, establish a regular training routine with lots of short, positive sessions, and use your crate or dog bed when you leave.

If the dog is destructive, then use your crate when you leave the house. With training and over time, you can work towards replacing the crate with a dog bed.

Let's go over an exercise that you can use with your dog to help them get comfortable with their crate, which in turn is a crucial tool for eliminating separation anxiety in your dog.

Some important things to keep in mind during this exercise is to keep the leash on the dog at all times and to make sure that the crate is always positive for the dog by placing it in a central room like the kitchen. You can also place a favourite toy or blanket in the crate with the dog, as long as they are not destructive and don't eat them. Eventually, you can work on replacing the crate with a dog bed so make sure you select a location where you would like the dog's spot to be.

Crate Training Exercise:

When introducing your dog to the crate for the first time, approach it with your dog on the leash. Crouch down and insert your hand into the middle of the crate and place it flat on the bottom. Don't tap your hand ~ just hold it still and stare at it. Do not look at your dog. What you are trying to do here is engage the dog's curiosity in what you are doing and what you are looking at.

With your peripheral vision, read what your dog is doing.

They will either walk up curiously and investigate the crate or freeze and refuse to go forward.

If they freeze, slide an arm under their hips and gently lift their hind end up just a little. Lean forward slightly so their paws step naturally into the crate thus encouraging them to walk forward in on their own. This may take some time so don't rush it.

Once your dog is in the crate, they will either turn and accept the crate (i.e. sit down and relax, maybe sniff around, and investigate curiously) or turn and try and leave immediately.

If your dog tries to leave, use the leash to bring them back into the crate. They may attempt to leave more than once. After each attempt, stand up tall like a soldier and take a deep breath ~ two seconds in and four seconds out. Often you will see the dogs body language relax as you exhale. At some point, your dog will give up and sit or lie down in the crate. At this point, give them lots of calm, gentle praise. You can also massage the dog around their chest, neck or ears to provide positive reinforcement for them being in the crate. Avoid talking to the dog, especially in a loud excited voice or making eye contact so you don't over-stimulate them and bring their energy up too high.

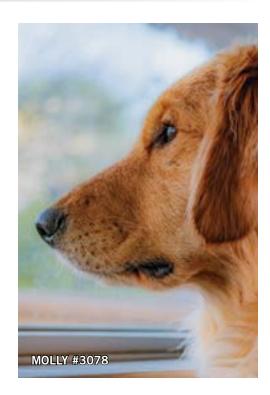

Once they are comfortable being in the crate, you are going to start testing them with distance by taking one step at a time away from the open crate door.

Avoid direct eye contact with them during this exercise. Keep your dog in your peripheral vision only. Direct eye contact will invite the dog out of the crate towards you and reinforce its separation anxiety making your job harder.

If your dog motions to get up and leave the crate while you are moving away, then quickly step back in front of the crate snapping your fingers at the open door. If they slip by you and leave the crate, then pick up the leash and walk them back into the crate. Then return to the soldier stance (tall posture and slow, regular breathing). Do not step away from the crate until the dog returns to its calm, relaxed state. This can take time and requires a lot of patience.

Once you are confident that your dog's separation anxiety is getting better, you can start to replace the crate with a dog bed. To transition to the bed, use the same steps as when you started crate training your dog.

Practicing crate training with the door open makes it easier to transition to the dog bed because they learn that it's not the door that is keeping them inside.

Once your dog is able to remain in their crate or dog bed in a calm and relaxed manner while you are in the room but a few steps away, then you'll want to test their reaction when you leave the room completely.

Start by taking a step out of the room so your dog cannot see you. Be ready for the dog to follow you.

If your dog steps out of the crate or off the dog bed to follow you, pick up the leash and walk them back to the crate/bed.

When they are back where they are supposed to be, stand tall and do your breathing again (soldier stance). Your posture and breathing are crucial to show your dog your expectation of a calm and relaxed state-of-mind.

Do not walk away until they turn, lay down, and relax.

Be patient throughout. Eventually you will expand the testing so that you can leave them on the dog bed or in the crate and be anywhere on your property. Test one step at a time systematically as you go. The end result of this exercise is to teach your dog to be calm and relaxed when you are not present thus eliminating separation anxiety that results in negative traits.

Training: Through A Dog's Eyes

If you have been reading my articles, then you know I strongly believe in positive reward-based training methods. So where does the 'dominance' theory fit into our training? It doesn't. Like most things, dog theory and training has evolved. However, some trainers and dog owners still believe in this theory and unfortunately it can actually cause or worsen unwanted behaviour.

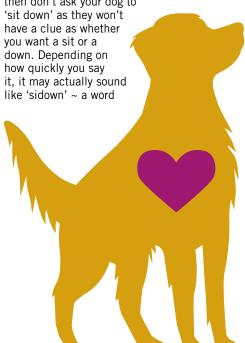

Current research and studies show that dogs enjoy human companionship. Afterall, we provide them with a safe place to live, food, beds to snuggle in, toys to play with, yummy treats, and, most of all, love. They are after all 'man's best friend'.

Here are some of the things recommended if you believe in the dominance theory...don't allow your dog on your bed or the furniture because they will think they are your equal and you will lose your alpha position. Really? Goldens love people (unless they've had a bad experience). Most Goldens love to cuddle. Our Star loves to sleep right next to Vaughan or I and moves between us through the night. Similarly, she'll cuddle on the couch with us. If your Golden growls or is reluctant to get off the couch, there may be an underlying reason such as pain (dogs are very good at hiding pain) or a fear of being forced off (something unpleasant may have happened in their past).

Another one is to put your hand in their bowl while they're eating so they understand you are the alpha. I'm sorry, but if Vaughan, my husband, came over to me and stuck his hand in my dinner while I was eating, I'd probably smack it and growl at him! It would make far more sense to add some more food or something extra yummy into his bowl to let him know, when you come close to his bowl, good things happen. Remember, many of you have rescues and some have come from places where they've had to fight for their food, or worse, been starved. Naturally they're going to be afraid of losing their food when anyone goes near it. I would be too.

Here's another one...if your dog doesn't listen to you and do what you ask, they no longer respect you. For this one, I'm going to refer you back to the second issue I wrote called 'English is a Second Language'. There are so many reasons why a dog may not do what we ask. They may not understand what we want, even though we've trained the word. Remember that dogs do not generalize well. They may perform an awesome 'sit' in the kitchen, but if you ask them to do it in another room or outside, they may not have figured out that 'sit' means the same thing anywhere you say it. It may be that there are other distractions around (other dogs, people, squirrels, etc.) that are way more interesting and they simply are not hearing you. Perhaps their joints are bothering them or your communication isn't clear. We always tell our students to be consistent with the words they use. If you train the word 'sit' meaning to sit and the word 'down' meaning to lie down, then don't ask your dog to they've never even heard before. Pushing or forcing them into a sit isn't going to help them understand what you want and may end up with them becoming fearful of you.

Roll your dog and hold your dog down with your body is another one. I remember being taught that almost 30 years ago with our first Golden puppy. I think back on that now and my stomach turns. How could I have even thought that was right? The idea of course is that you're exerting your dominance over your dog and showing them who's boss by holding them down. Imagine if someone did that to you? You'd want to escape, fight to get away, and worst of all, be scared out of your mind.

All your Golden wants is for you to be their best friend. We have to be especially careful to make sure we gently motivate and have patience with those Goldens who have been rescued. Many have had very difficult lives. It can take time to help them feel safe and secure again. Using forceful methods isn't going to help...it may actually hinder and possibly escalate any underlying behaviour issues. Using positive reward-based training, on the other hand, will provide a much more trusting and enjoyable learning experience for both you and your dog.

MEET & GREET

Levi #3309

When poor Levi came into our home, he was a broken, neglected, skinand-bones Golden who, it is rumored, came from a back-yard breeder. His first bath shocked us as it showed through his fur just how skinny he actually was. We immediately improved his diet and brushed him twice a day and the results have been amazing. His weight has improved, his coat is shiny, and there is a heart-warming bounce in his step. Levi now runs like the wind around our acreage and we swear we can see him smile. Thank you for picking us to be his new forever family. He is wonderful and we love him to the moon and back.

MEET & GREET

Cleopatra #3357

Cleo from Cairo is learning to sit and to ring the bell by the side door to go outside. We're happy to report she has had no accidents in the house. We're working on 'down' as she can be a bit over zealous at times with certain people. She's great on a leash and eagerly tries to meet all the squirrels in her neighbourhood. Sugar #2526 (from Istanbul) is still trying to figure out if she's a permanent fixture or just 'visiting' and has had to put Cleo in her place once or twice if Cleo is over exuberant. Cleo is still an energetic pup and she and Sugar play, play, and play. We're beyond thrilled with the two of them and they've injected new energy into the whole family.

Henry, Kathy, Ben & Sarah

Dear Sadie: What is Giardia? I heard my doctor say I have it and now I need to take medicine. Perplexed Rex

Dear Rex: When I first heard about this disease, I thought it was 'Ardia' because I heard my mom talking to the doc when my fur-brother got it...and she said, "Gee...Ardia? He got this probably after he ate some animal droppings in our backyard (yuck!). Giardia is a parasite that can cause a number of gastrointestinal symptoms including foul-smelling and mucous-y stool. Most adult dogs are resistant to Giardia; however, the ones most at risk are young dogs and adult dogs who already have disease in their intestines (like Inflammatory Bowel Disease). Your vet can make a diagnosis with a simple test but you may need more than one round of antibiotics to properly treat it. One more thing ~ you can pass Giardia to other animals or your humans, so your stool should be picked up promptly and hands must be washed frequently. Gee...Ardia. Not a good thing!

Dear Sadie: Every time I growl, I get in trouble and my dad tells me to stop. I don't know why he gets so upset with me when all I am doing is trying to warn or protect him. Lucy

Dear Lucy: It's natural for humans to respond negatively to growling. It is undesirable behaviour that may lead to more aggressive actions such as biting. But punishing you for growling will not only teach you not to growl, but it could be teaching to bite without warning. It doesn't actually solve the problem since the reason for growling will still be there. Instead, what will yield better results is acknowledging your fear, then rewarding you for looking into the underlying source. In time this will relieve some of the anxiety surrounding certain triggers and allow you to be comfortable around your family.

Dear Sadie: For the past few days, I have been waking up in the middle of the night and I'm not sure why. I used to sleep all the way through so this seems a little odd. My dad takes me outside each time to relieve myself and I go but could it be something else? Fragmented Fred

Dear Fred: Since that seems abnormal for you, the first thing to do is rule out any possible medical factors, such as a urinary tract infection, by speaking with your vet. Next, make sure you are getting a proper mental and physical workout each day with lots of exercise and stimulating games. Another thing to look at is separation anxiety. Do you sleep in the same room as your hu-mom and dad or is the door closed with you on the other side? Being the true companions we are, we like to be nearby. Perhaps allowing you to sleep in the same room or following my other suggestions will help solve the problem and lead to a more restful sleep. Paws crossed!

Dear Sadie: There are times, believe it or not, when I don't eat my food and some days I don't touch it at all. I don't think that's normal for a Golden, is it? Abby

Dear Abby: Not eating your food or being a picky eater could be caused by a number of reasons and may be nothing to be alarmed about. If you are maintaining your weight and your ribs aren't showing, then you're likely okay to skip a meal or two. If it continues for an extended amount of time and you seem 'off', you may want a vet to check you out. Other factors such as dislike or boredom of the current food, getting too many treats or table scraps, and anxiety from things such as being left alone, thunderstorms or loud noises can all make you less hungry. If you feel okay, then there is probably nothing to be worried about but definitely something to keep an eye on!

Dear Sadie: I lose a lot of my hair in the summer and my mummy sometimes gets annoyed with me as she has to bring the vacuum out every day. My daddy called me aside one day and said: "Look buddy, you have to sook in". I don't know what he means, do you? Distraught Dyson

Dear Dyson: Your dad is just joking with you. He's asking you to inhale and try to keep your hair attached to your body. It's just a fact of life that us Goldens lose a lot of hair, especially in the summer. Our families don't necessarily like it but they understand. Worry not. I hope this 'sheds' (teehee) some light on this for you.

Merry Christmas
everyone & stay safel

CAIRO IN CRISIS: A 24-Kar

at Success Story

Airport closures, the pandemic, financial difficulties, and the cancellation of all Golden Rescue events in 2020 brought Golden Rescue's international Mission of Love program to a grinding halt. This happened at the same time as our partners/volunteer angels in Cairo were pleading with us for help to get Goldens out of Cairo before they were poisoned or sent to the dog meat trade. Our hearts were breaking and we felt impotent to do anything that would help relieve the suffering of these poor creatures.

We decided we would try a fundraising plea as it is expensive to bring a Golden to Canada from Cairo ~ $1,500 for airfare, medical tests and vaccinations, travel documents, crates, etc.

We had two generous donors who agreed to match up to $15,000 each and we started our campaign with eblasts and social media posts. We also asked people to consider a full sponsorship of a Golden for $1,500.

The results were absolutely staggering!

We were hoping beyond hope that we would be able to bring at least 24 Goldens to Canada. We raised enough money to bring 80+ Goldens to Canada ~ and 37 of them were full sponsorships.

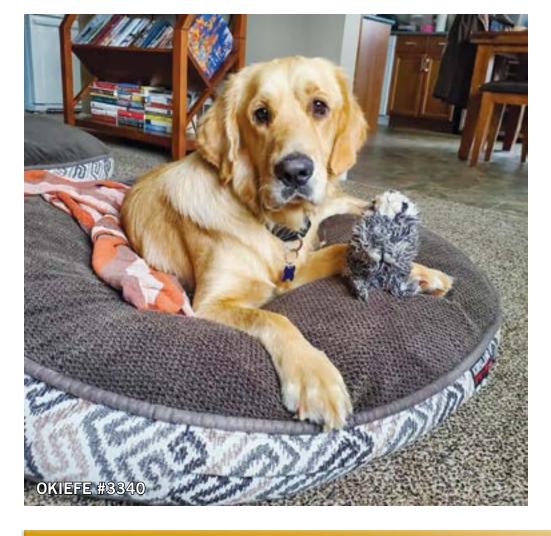

We are overwhelmed and a simple thank you seems insufficient. The real gratitude comes from the Goldens who arrive here. When they come out of their crates at the airport, you just know that they have started their happily-ever-after lives in the arms of loving forever families. This is all because of YOU! Thank you for your continued support and for giving these Goldens their ONLY chance.

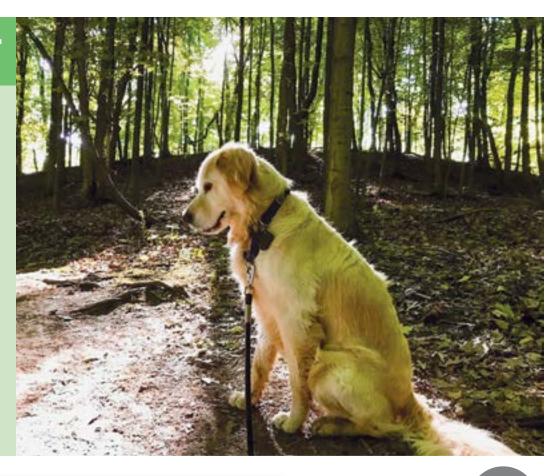

MEET & GREET

Fletcher #3289

This wonderful boy probably learned his hunting skills from the streets of Istanbul because he is a hunter extraordinaire. When he's on the hunt, he loses his ears but when he's at home, he is a great listener. When he is not hunting, he loves chasing balls. Fletcher loves people and is an absolute joy to be around as he is happy all the time. He also loves other dogs and wrestling with his Golden friends might be his absolute favourite thing to do. I feel so lucky to be his dad.

'Goodnight Goldens' are weekly bedtime rescue stories read to you by our wonderful adopters, fosters, volunteers, and supporters...with their rescued Goldens by their side.

Don't forget to tune in every Thursday night to hear these rescue stories read from our Golden Reflections coffee table book. They will warm the cockles of your heart on a cold winter's night. Enjoy!

And you can always catch the first 20+ episodes by going to YouTube ~ search under 'Goodnight Goldens'.

Roxy #3113

Roxy is moving to Nova Scotia with us as we are returning to where we grew up. Roxy was a nervous girl when she met new people or dogs but she has come a long way. She is now about to meet her new canine cousins. It will take some adjustments but she is resilient and we are convinced she will love her new home and new friends and family. When we get settled, we want to volunteer for Golden Rescue in Nova Scotia and we know Roxy will be a good ambassador.

Fa la la la la, la la la la

For your tireless help and hard-earned dollars Fa la la la la, la la la la

You have our deep appreciation Fa la la la la, la la la la

And all our Goldens' adulation Fa la la la la, la la la la

It has been a difficult year...everywhere you look. We continued our rescue efforts, albeit adaptively, but continue we did. As we enter a new year, our hopes are high that the pandemic will soon be over.

To our supporters, volunteers, fosters, and adopters, from the bottom of our hearts THANK YOU for all you did this year to help our Goldens in need!

We wish you and your family a warm, fuzzy, and safe holiday season and new year!
